Dallas Black History Fact!

Pearl C. Anderson (1898 - 1990) grew up in modest means in Louisiana, where she was denied an education until she was 12 and the Rosewald Foundation built a school for Black children near her home. She attended college for a year and moved to Dallas where she purchased a plot of land and built her own very successful grocery store. She married Dr. J.W. Anderson, a wealthy well-respected Black doctor, and after his death, she dedicated herself and her wealth to philanthropic pursuits. Anderson was beloved by the Dallas community and donated time and money to organizations like the NAACP, Bishop College, the American Red Cross, and many more. In 1955 she donated $350,000 worth of properties in downtown Dallas to the Community Chest Trust Fund, which is still being used to provide early childhood education for disadvantaged children in Dallas.

SHOTZ TECH FAVES

Apple Watch Ultra

1 Apple has now been making its Watch series for a good few years, most of which have followed roughly the same formula. The Apple Watch Ultra takes all of the good bits of previous designs, and piles as much as possible on top. While the result is a smartwatch that is by no means cheap, it has also resulted in the perfect device for athletes of all practices. Apple has kept divers, climbers, tennis players, martial artists and everyone in-between in mind.

Meta Quest Pro

Ah yes, the metaverse - the supposed future of our digital world. While this new virtual land hasn't exactly begun successfully, many tech leaders are still very much of the view that we'll soon be plugged in, enjoying our own digital house, job and life. If you want to get in now and enjoy the metaverse and virtual reality, the Meta Quest Pro 2 is likely to be the best way to do this. Meta, previously known as Facebook, has poured money into this to offer the latest and most impressive specs available in the world of VR.

DJI Mini 3 Pro

2 Every year, DJI's Mini series gets smaller and yet more powerful. It offers advanced obstacle avoidance features, a rotating lens so you can film portrait or landscape, 4K video, smart flying features like automatic tracking and the ability to follow a subject. Despite its higher price, this feels like the perfect drone for beginners, those who like to travel, or really anyone in the market for a light-weight, high tech drone.

Dallas Black History Fact!

The first African-American mayor of Dallas (1995).

Originally from Austin, Texas, Ambassador Ron Kirk graduated from Austin College and earned his law degree at the University of Texas School of Law.

After graduating from law school, he served as Texas Secretary of State under Governor Ann Richards.

In 1995, Ambassador Kirk was elected as mayor of Dallas and served two terms. Soon after, he practiced law as a partner in the international law firm Vinson & Elkins, LLP. He was named one of "The 50 Most Influential Minority Lawyers in America" by The National Law Journal in 2008.

President Barack Obama nominated Ambassador Kirk to serve as the 16th U.S. Trade Representative. He was confirmed in 2009 by the Senate. Also, Ambassador Kirk was a member of President Obama's Cabinet and served as the President's principal trade advisor, negotiator, and spokesperson on trade issues.

Dallas Black History Fact!

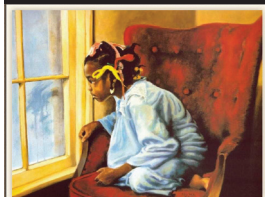

Arthello Beck, Jr. was born in Dallas on July 17, 1941. He was the first African-American to own and operate an art gallery in Dallas. Arthello Beck graduated from Dallas's Lincoln High School, where he received his only art training; beyond that, he was self-taught. He had a speech impediment and he tended to express himself more through his art than through speech, especially as a very young man. Beck used the main Dallas Public Library as a way to learn more about art. Beck's artistry depicted the life and culture of African-American people when it wasn't popular, beginning in the 1960s. He opened an art gallery in Oak Cliff around 1973 and owned the gallery for more than thirty years. In 1988, he was one of four winners of an art contest in which the winning paintings were reproduced on billboards. The painting, writ large, was reproduced on billboards throughout the Dallas area sequentially for a year and was available for viewing by as many as 400,000 motorists per day. Beck relished the tremendous amount of exposure for one of his paintings. Beck's painting of Jesus being baptized by John was done for the Crest-Moore King Memorial United Methodist Church; in it, both Jesus and John are presented as black men. Beck's artwork was on display in art galleries, museums, churches, colleges, universities, community centers, the Dallas City Hall's Great Court, and the State Fair of Texas. You've likely seen his work if you've passed through Terminal D at Dallas-Forth Worth Airport. Beck's most well-known work is a 20-foot-wide rendering of Caddo Lake titled Cypress Trees. It was embedded in the floor a year after his death. During his life,

Beck donated several of his paintings to the Seagoville Federal Correctional Institute. Considered by many to be one of the leading artists of the Southwest, Beck traveled to Central America, South America, West Africa, England, China, Egypt, Turkey, and the Caribbean. Beck once told a reporter, "I do believe an artist has to see things. An artist has to travel."
